

Pink Rose

vs.1

You've been hiding under tables, sitting on the floor.
You don't have to be afraid, walk on eggshells anymore.
You are safe to be yourself, set your spirit free.
You can shine your light now, for all the world to see.

chorus

You can have the pink rose, the icing on the cake.
It's there for the asking, a sweet bite for you to take.
Taste and see the good things, good things are in store.
See the landscape wide before you, don't you know
there's so much more.

vs. 2

I know you've been broken, I've been broken too.
Sometimes I still feel the pain of all that I've been through.
Then I remember who I am and let my spirit soar.
No more shame and sorrow, my faith has been restored.

You can have the pink rose, the icing on the cake.
It's there for the asking, a sweet bite for you to take.
Taste and see the good things, good things are in store.
See the landscape wide before you, don't you know
there's so much more.

vs.3

Someone told you long ago to be seen not heard.
Work is hard and if you fail, you get what you deserve.
But now you're safe to be yourself, ask for what you need.
Dark clouds have been lifted, ask and you'll receive.

You can have the pink rose, the icing on the cake.
It's there for the asking, a sweet bite for you to take.
Taste and see the good things, good things are in store.
See the landscape wide before you, don't you know
there's so much more.
You can have the pink rose, the icing on the cake.
It's there for the asking, a sweet bite for you to take.

by Christine Rosander © Rosander Music ASCAP